

Thanks to a man who cares deeply

Sir, - We find him here, we find him there, that man who pops up everywhere.

Two weeks ago he criticised Sainsbury's application for more space for comparison goods and expressed his concern should it be detrimental to central Farnham. Then the constant traffic, street parking so often illegal, the presence of empty shops and charity shops and what disadvantage does this have on our old market town? What do visitors, or Farnham residents perceive now of our Georgian town?

Now, not content with their interference in all things Farnham this Man in the Street has found Waverley Borough Council to be underhand and devious in their actions over the unlawful changing rooms for Farnham Town Football Club.

As for Waverley Training Services it seems to me that WBC is more concerned with their re-housing than with the questionable and unwanted alterations to the interior of our Memorial Hall.

Training for what? Bearing in mind the words of the covenant who are in training and what is their recreation or sport?

Well Mark Westcott, thank you for caring for Farnham and our inheritance as much as I do.
